DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

The indicated allowability of the claims is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Flippin, Jr. (US 6223759) and Shingles (US D381847). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow. The inconvenience to applicant is regretted.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. §103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 3-10, 13, 15, 17 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Flippin, Jr. (US 6223759) in view of either Shingles (US D381847) or Clarke (US 123380).

Flippin, Jr. (figure 3) teaches the combination of an umbrella that has a ring 35 to receive the canopy of the closed umbrella to prevent the umbrella from opening and a handle comprising a proximal end and a distal end, wherein the distal end is coupled to the ring 35 and the proximal end comprises the hand grip 38. The difference is that the proximal end does not comprise a portion clearly extending perpendicular to the distal end. However, Shingles (figures 3, 4, 6) teaches an umbrella holster structure including a handle clearly extending perpendicular to the distal end that connects to the holster for the umbrella so as to be easier to manipulate. Further, as Flippin, Jr. indicates that art appropriate for combination with Flippin, Jr. would include holder art for the open umbrella and Clarke (figures 1,) teaches a support for an umbrella comprising a ring defining an opening, E, wherein the ring comprises a continuous circle and handle A, M, N, wherein the handle comprises a proximal end and a distal end, wherein the proximal end is substantially perpendicular to the distal end, wherein the distal end is flexibly coupled to the ring, and wherein the proximal end is adapted to be held in a user's hand. The base, M, is inherently capable of being manipulated as a handle. As it would be beneficial to make the handle of the umbrella holder of Flippin, Jr. easier to manipulate it would have been obvious to modify the holder of Flippin, Jr. so that the handle extends perpendicularly as taught by Shingles in an umbrella holder so as to be easier to manipulate or a taught by Clarke to be easier to provide a support on a horizontal surface. As to claim 3, the device of Flippin, Jr. can obviously be raised so that the ring 35 extends above the umbrella when held in a vertical orientation. In regard to claims 7 and 10, applicant shows in the figures that the table is not a part of the claimed configuration through the use of dashed lines for the table and these claims are considered to be claims indicating a capability of the device to be used in such a configuration and the devices of Flippin, Jr. and Shingles or particularly Clarke possess such a capability. As to claims 15 and 17, the further difference is that the ring is not decorated by having ornaments fitted into cutout areas. However, decoration for aesthetic appearance is a common improvement and applicant is given Official Notice that the use of trim within openings of a ring for decorative purposes is well known in the art as a matter of improved aesthetic appearance.

Claims 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Flippin, Jr. (US 6223759) in view of Shingles (US D381847) as applied to claim 10 above, and further in view of JP 2003-49417.

Art Unit: 3677

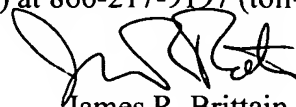

Further modification of the device of Flippin, Jr. such that the handle lacks an aperture to allow it to be more easily manipulated. It would have been obvious to modify the device of Flippin, Jr. as modified above so that the base has an aperture to permit it to be more easily manipulated by hand in view of JP 2003-79417 (figures 3, 5) in which a holder for an umbrella has a handle with an aperture therein to permit easier manipulation by hand.
